Sunny follows the journey of a lonely Regent Honeyeater searching for others of his kind in a landscape where his species once thrived. As Sunny searches through the fragmented woodlands, he hears a unique, hopeful melody. This lyrical tale, rich with Australian bush imagery, explores themes of loss, longing, finding one's community, and possibly even love. Written by Cate Storey and Penny Watson, with illustrations by Sarah Matsuda, the book also includes non-fiction information about box-ironbark woodlands and other species that benefit from their protection.
