LO SCARABEO

To really connect

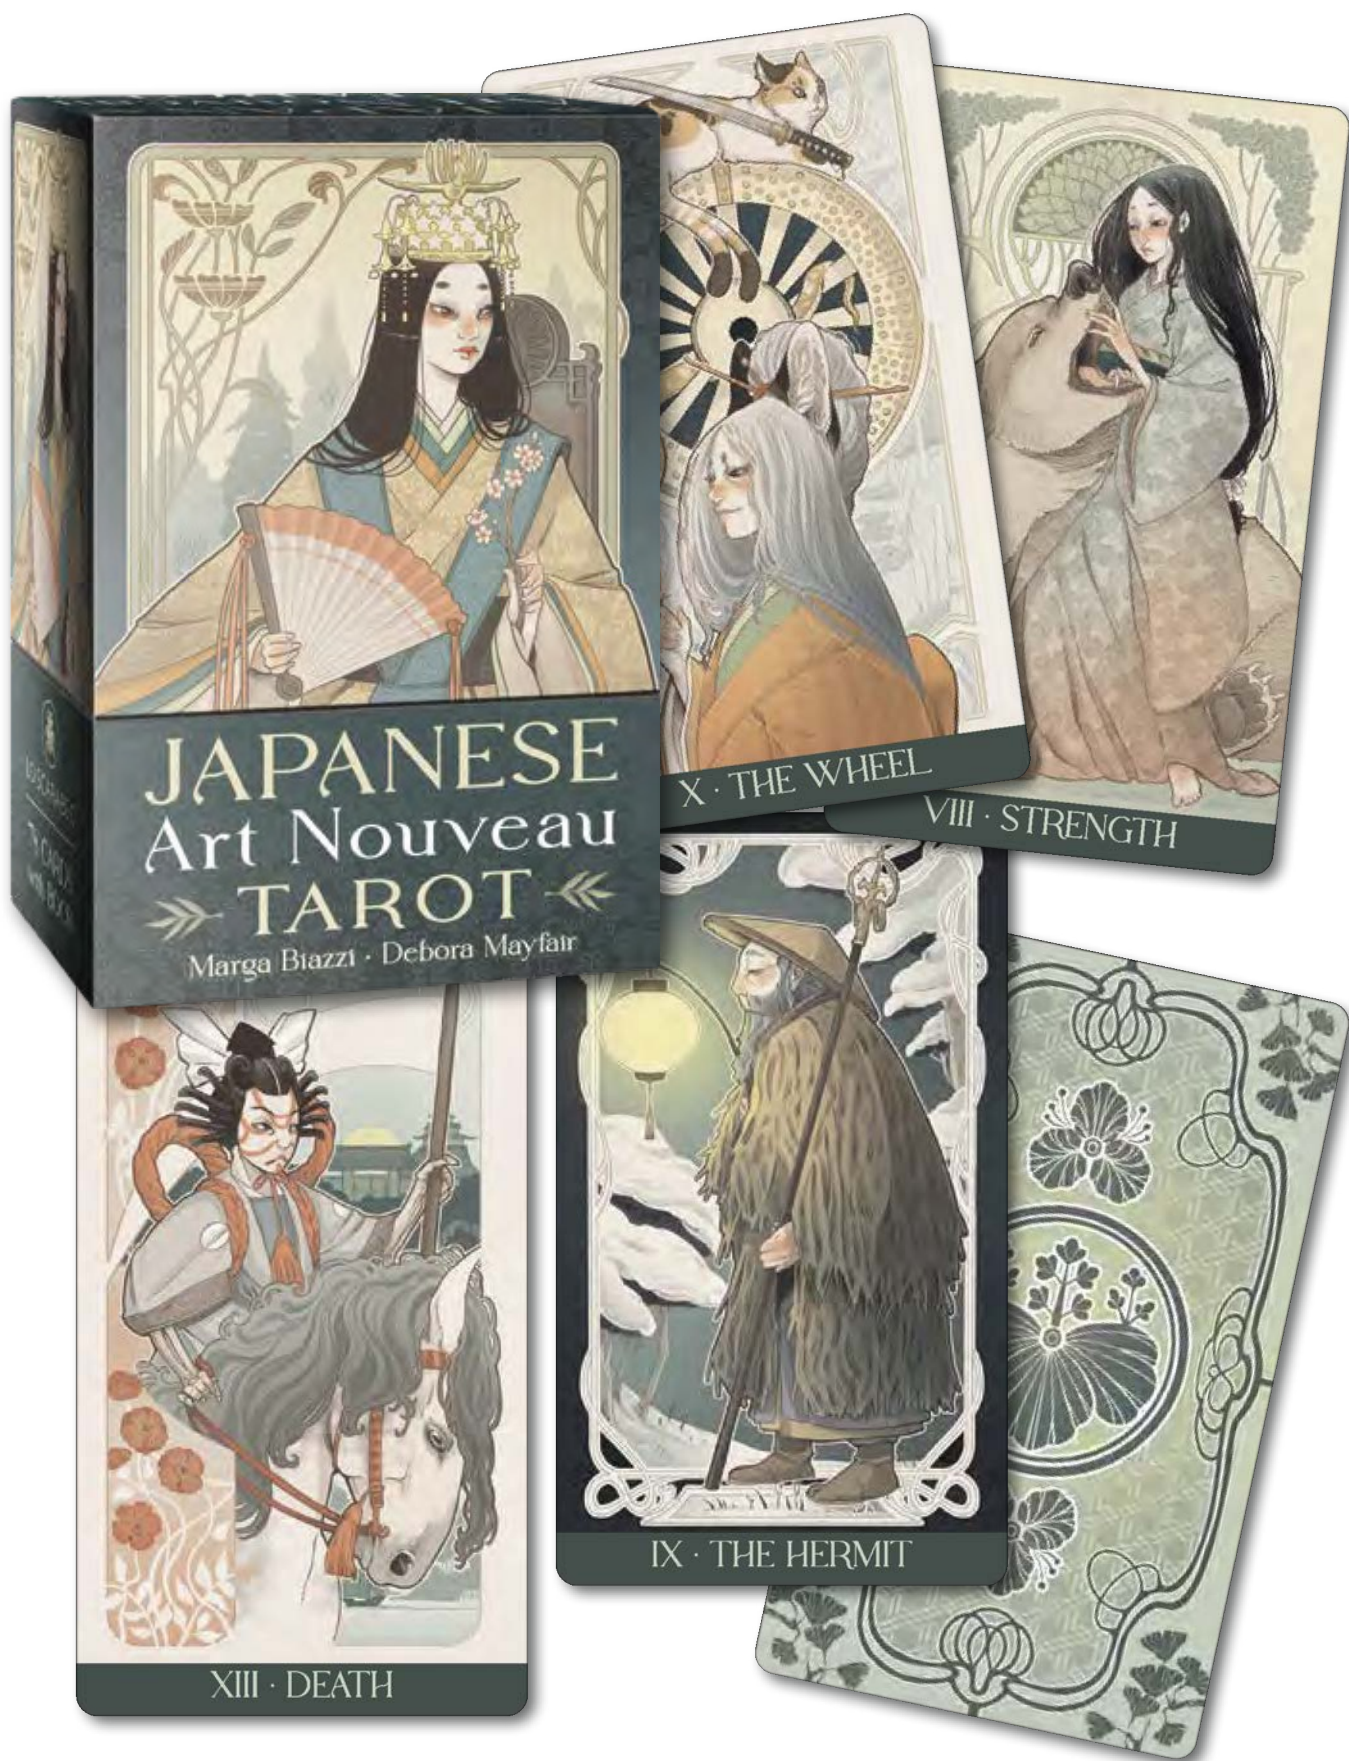

Today's technological wonders offer endless ways to interact, yet there are things that virtual channels simply cannot connect—things like Man with Nature, with the Divine, with himself. These are fundamental, intimate relationships that bind us to the world but to which, paradoxically, the world devotes very little time. Safeguarding these kinds of connections has always been a priority for Lo Scarabeo, but now, as I review the 2026 releases before writing this introduction, I can't help but notice how the theme of communication is stronger and more relevant than ever before.

Not surprisingly, this will be the year of the new MBS (Mind, Body, and Spirit) collection, which specifically focuses on these kinds of relations. Part of this series is the box set Akashic Connection Cards (page 19), created by leading Akashic Records expert Linda Howe to provide access to a vast universal wisdom. A completely different link is opened up by the Healing Oracle (page 18), which is part of the hugely popular self-help genre, teaching us how to confront ourselves, our fears, our traumas, and our doubts. Also from the MBS line—and currently exclusive to the Italian market—are the Oracle of the Afterlife by Chantal Dejean and the Numerology of Family Memories by Carlotta Trumino, two masters in their respective fields of interaction with the experiences of the soul beyond life and with the memories of one's family system.

Of course, there will be no shortage of new Tarot cards from Lo Scarabeo this year! Consider, for instance, the original Fantaland Tarot (page 15) by the famous artist Ricardo Cavolo: a deck of cards dedicated to the fantasy genre that can also be used as a game for two or more people. The elegant Anima Tarot (page 2) is the work of the duo Anna Oginski and Catherine Asterdis, while the partnership between artist Viki Lester and writer Theresa Reed has produced the new Tarot Affirmations (page 4), a special deck featuring an inspirational phrase printed on each Arcanum, making readings easier and more engaging than ever. A final mention must certainly go to the return of bestselling author Tarn Ellis with the Goddess Astrology Oracle (page 17), which connects the reader with the power of the stars and the Divine Feminine.

And it is exactly these kinds of connections that the 2026 catalog seeks to celebrate, offering an alternative to today's virtual bonds—an alternative of true, human, and spiritual communication with oneself, with others, with our world, and with the many different dimensions of being that Lo Scarabeo has carefully cultivated for the past 39 years.
